DAVID INSHAW, LAST OF THE ROMANTICS

by Paul Chapman

David Inshaw is a contemporary artist who became well known in the 1970s and has produced many works since. His career has followed a fascinating path from the 1960s to the present with subjects touching on landscape, romanticism, fantasy and reality. Originally from the Midlands, David has lived in Devizes for a number of years. He has paintings in a number of public and private collections around the country, including The Badminton Game (detail above) which is in the Tate. Paul Chapman is an excellent art historian and one of our most popular speakers.
