SUMMER VISIT TO KELMSCOTT MANOR

with a tour and cream tea

Kelmscott was the home of William Morris, the remarkable writer, designer and socialist. It reopened last year after a long restoration project. There is an outstanding collection of works by Morris, his family and associates and there is also a pretty garden.

We will be on a group tour followed by a cream tea. A gluten free cake will be available for those with dietary requirements. The house is not open for individual browsing on group days. The cost will be £27.50. Travel will be by car, with car sharing and lifts for those who need them. We need to arrive by 1.45-55pm ready for the talk and tour at 2pm. Access to the ground floor is via three steps but there is no lift for upstairs.

Please contact Paul Butler at paul.butler60@outlook.com by June 20th if you would like to come and for payment details. Please also say whether you need a lift or can offer one.
