The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night Time

Theatre Royal Bath

The play, adapted by Simon Stephens from Mark Haddon's best-selling novel, will be directed by Ned Bennett and co-produced by Melting Pot and the Birmingham Rep.

What's this about?

Christopher Boone is gifted with a brilliant mind for numbers but unsettled by the unpredictability of people and everyday life. When a neighbour's dog is discovered killed, he finds himself under suspicion. Determined to prove his innocence, Christopher becomes both detective and suspect, drawn into a mystery that grows darker and more complex with every clue he uncovers.

What begins as the search for a culprit soon reveals secrets closer to home, forcing him to confront truths that will test his courage, his family, and his understanding of trust, independence, and the wider world. Inventive, gripping, and moving, The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time combines the intrigue of a whodunnit with a powerful coming-of-age story in an unforgettable theatrical event.

Tickets for the play will cost £41 for members, £43 for non-members. Coach travel will be arranged at a small extra cost picking up from Nailsworth bus station, Minchinhampton Scout Hut and Rooksmoor Mills. We shall arrive mid-morning to allow time for shopping and lunch before the 2.30 performance.
